

Phantom Falls / Trench Town Wall

This venue has had a couple new routes added to the wall starting about 40 m right of the route Superstylin detailed on page 392-393 in Ghost River Rock Climbs. Of note Ross Suchy re-climbed his climb Superstylin and felt the grade is more likely around 5.13a/b verses the 5.12d grade given in the guide be aware of this discrepancy. The first bolted line found to the right is a project going at roughly 5.13a/b and just right again 5 m is a bolted line that climbs a shallow corner up to a bulging prow called The Warm-up. The cliff overall still requires a good trail up the final approach slope to make access more reasonable proposition. It also needs a few more routes developed at all grades to make this more of a destination cliff. There is definitely lots of potential for this venue to become a premium hard sport crag in the Ghost with more development.

The Warm-up ** 5.11b/c, 25 m. 10 clips

Ross Suchy, August 2015

Ross had previously graded this line “maybe 5.11a” On our outing up this route we added another bolt to the runout bottom section, did some more cleaning and it’s now a very worthwhile climb with steady hard 5.10 through low 5.11 for the first two thirds, before it overcomes the steep devious bulging prow (previously under graded crux) to reach the anchor.

The Warm-up Really! ** 5.10d, 25 m, 10 clips

Ross Suchy & Andy Genereux, June 2016

Located about 20 m right of the The Warm-up this provides engaging climbing. There is also an anchor 5 m to the right for a second hopefully easier project. Note the names for these new routes may change in the future I’m just having a little fun with Ross and his previous gradings on some of his routes.
